Knoxville Symphony Orchestra to bring holiday spirit to East Tennessee communities

The Knoxville Symphony Orchestra is celebrating the holiday season this December in Harrogate, Dandridge and Athens with three festive community concerts.

KSO Resident Conductor James Fellenbaum will lead the Knoxville Symphony Chamber Orchestra in a classical Christmas program, including Anderson's "A Christmas Festival Overture," selections from Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker" and more.

"As we approach the holiday season, we are excited to perform once again for our friends in the Harrogate, Dandridge and Athens communities," Fellenbaum said. "Audiences will hear many familiar favorites, along with some new holiday selections that I am sure everyone will enjoy!"

Concert dates, venues, ticket prices and all other relevant information are as follows:

Harrogate

Thursday, Dec. 1, 7 p.m.
B. Frank "Tex" Turner Arena at Lincoln Memorial University
Free to the public; no tickets required

Dandridge
